What are the issues customer service functions in the healthcare industry are facing nowadays?

SATISFYING CUSTOMERS ARE JUST NEVER ENDING CHALLENGES...

Delay in resolving issues, overlooked service enquiries and under achieved Service Level Agreement (SLA) are among the challenges faced by most businesses. These will lead to the potential loss of business if customer retention remains low and the reputation of the company will be at stake.

CUSTOMER SERVICE ISSUES CONCERNING THE HEALTHCARE INDUSTRY

Unlike other industries, customer service in the healthcare industry has a unique set of challenges specific to providing excellent service to the patients as well as their family members and the general public. In most cases, responding to feedback such as complaints, enquiries and requests are delayed due to inefficiency of the process.

Typically, collection of the customer feedback is by the following channels:

- Face to face discussion
- Email
- Phone
- Letters
- Paper forms
- Newspaper, through Editorials
- Website
- Social Media (Facebook, Twitter, Google+, LinkedIn etc)

Below are the dilemmas generally faced by the patients or customers on submission of their feedback to the customer service personnel:

- “It’s taking them too long to get back to me”
- “The hospital didn’t deliver what they promised”
- “I can’t believe how rudely I am being treated”
- “They transfer me over & over and I have to repeat my issue again & again”
- “I have to check over & over on the status of my issue”
- “I have been left in the dark in support limbo”
- “They are not solving my problem instead of putting blames on others”
- “The problem is never being solved even after several visits”
